It's time to open the fifth window on our annual Interiors Advent Calendar. Every day until Christmas we will be featuring a product for home lover, today we are in the kitchen. Behind our window today we found a product from Universal Expert, a new brand of homewares from well-known product design Sebastian Conran.

With his Conran name they do say 'design is in his blood' and this new range certainly is beautiful – but the good news is it is also practical! This cook book stand would look stylish in any kitchen – and it's not only a good size for cookbooks but it's perfectly sized to hold your tablet. This makes it a clever choice if you like to spend time cooking from online recipes but want to keep the tablet away from your ingredients! The cook book stand is available for £25.0, you can find more information on the range and buy the products on the Ocra website.

All of the products featured on our annual Interiors Advent calendars can be seen on one Pinterest board. You can also find inspiration on our Facebook page, or follow me for my regular updates on twitter. Full details of all our Interior Design and Build services can be found on our website.
