British designer Sebastian Conran launched Universal Expert, a line of cooking and storage, plus organization products, earlier this year, and the collection does a seamless job of marrying function with design. The products are simple and elegant and made from traditional materials, like woods with antimicrobial properties, durable porcelain, heat-resistant glass, and super tough stainless steel – making them built to last. Like the “Universal” name says, the products are both flexible and affordable with aesthetics that will appeal to the masses.
